Abstract: The 1703 Harbour of the City of Hermannstadt (Sibiu)

18th century Austrian plans show the traces of a fortress which was about to be built near the city of Hermannstadt, in that period the capital of Transylvania. The buiding of this star-shaped, Vauban type fortress was approved by the Emperor Leopold I in 1702. Plans also show that a two basins harbor and a long canal were built, in order to bring quarry stone with boats from a place situated near the Gura Rîului village, almost 14 kilometers away.
